

Long haired breeds during their stay at

The Dog House

When we go on holiday most of us want to relax, enjoy, explore and have fun. The same rule applies for our canine companions. At The Dog House we try to make your dog's holiday a canine haven where they can run, explore, scent, swim, bog surf, climb, slide, play and have a great deal of fun every day! For short haired dog's returning from these adventures is pretty easy, if needed a quick wash down and dry then to relax in the comfort of their room, or on warmer days sunbathing out on the lawns. For long haired dogs it's not that simple.

Although long haired shaggy dogs (particularly poodle crossbreeds) may look fantastic and are soft to touch, when they return from a woodland adventure, they need a great deal more maintenance to return them to their natural healthy condition. Most long curly, fluffy haired dogs with impractical overgrown coats return from a walk with foreign bodies caught up in their fur; mud, burrs, bramble, thorn, grass seeds etc. So, they take a trip straight to our grooming salon. Firstly, they have any burs / thorns carefully teased out or if necessary, cut out of their coat followed by a bath / rinse down if muddy with warm water. (If mud is left in their fur, it will cause matts which can become incredibly uncomfortable if not painful, especially around their sanitary area and arm pits. They then have to be dried thoroughly, most importantly to avoid moist dermatitis (commonly known as hot spots) and then need to be brushed thoroughly to avoid any matting. This process normally takes at least an hour depending on breed, size and length of coat.

We always ask for fluffy and single coat long-haired breeds to be clipped to a practical length during their stay, for their best interests the maximum length we accept is half an inch (13mm) – It will of course soon grow again! Although most dogs enjoy being pampered, to have the above a lengthy bath and detangling happen daily is tiring for a dog and it isn't good for the condition of their coat, skin or your pocket. When we ask to give your dog a haircut, please consider the circumstances of why we ask. Our canine guests are having a Wild, Welsh, Wilderness holiday after all.
